D'signing Man
Kyle Blood

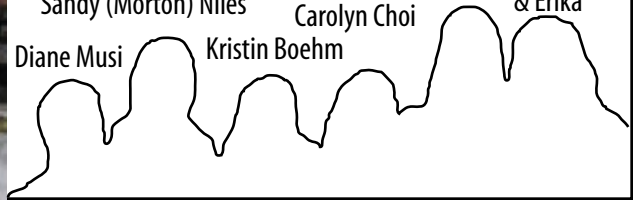

I guess my big news is that I'm Design Director for the 2008 Hamptons Cottages & Gardens Idea House, which opened to the public July 25. I oversaw the renovation of the historic James Jones house (he wrote from "Here to Eternity") and the addition of a modern "green" wing. I supervised 23 designers, including famous ones like Jamie Drake and Campion Platt. Check out hchandg.com/IdeaHouse/Hamptons. Also, I've opened my own design studio in Sag Harbor...not working out of the house anymore. Still splitting time between Hamptons and NYC, with clients in NYC, Hamptons, Westchester, and CT. Update from Deborah Green HONOLULU → BOSTON

I've recently decided to accept a great job opportunity to become Director of Neurocritical Care at Boston University/Boston Medical Center. That means I'll be moving from Honolulu after nearly 8 years to head back to Boston in the fall. I'm also looking forward to a trip to the Amazon and hiking up Macchu Picchu in Peru this July and embracing the idea of the big 4-0 birthday by celebrating with my friends during an entire weekend in Newport, Rhode Island--one of my favorite places to visit.

Burnetts meet Callaways

Elizabeth Callaway, Elizabeth Burnett '90 and husband Adam Mans, Caleb Callaway, Melissa and Ed Callaway '90 hiking in snowy Sedona, Arizona in March 2008...after a completely chance meeting in the park ranger station on an unseasonably cold morning. We hadn't seen each other since Elizabeth's wedding in 1996. Good thing Elizabeth and Ed still had their Gore-tex jackets from college. Elizabeth Callaway (age 9) and her brother Caleb (age 11) were amazing sports as we hiked through thunder, lightning, and snow while the adults caught up on years of news. The Callaway family lives in Nashville, Tennessee, and Elizabeth and Adam (and three kids) live in Minnesota.

As someone who never writes in with news, I got inspired because I finally had everyone's sort of updated news, after attending the wedding of Dr. Erika dePapp '90, and enjoying the company of many other Dartmouth alums. So here's a quick update on the other '90s in attendance. First, the bride, Erika dePapp married Lynn Spensley in a beautiful sunny (in October!) wedding on the Cape (see photo on previous page). Erika is a veterinarian at Angell Animal Medical Center in Boston. In her spare time, Erika always seems to be in training, running, or biking, in some god-awful long-distance race to raise money for good causes, or on some envy-inspiring vacation. Kristin Boehm is a plastic surgeon in Atlanta, who travels widely in her spare time. Since graduation I've probably seen her a dozen times already, as she always manages to vacation near wherever I happen to be living at the time. Sandy (Morton) Niles and her husband Sam, live in Sherborn, MA where she raises horses and her two beautiful daughters, Didi and Abby. Diane Musi and her partner, Heather, have two cute and cuddly children, Riley and Zack. Diane is head counsel for Upromise, near Boston. She can tell you how to maximize your saving for your kids' college funds without doing anything more than your regular shopping. Chris (Henning) Ferrante lives in Portland, OR with her husband Mike, and 2 kids, Julia and Tommy. Chris is a stay-at-home Mom, but so busy that I can never catch her at home. I also have landed in Portland, OR last summer, after many years drifting from coast to coast to coast (CT, NV, CT, CA, now OR). I live here with my husband, Jonathan Warmflash (a new dentist, and the reason for our drifting from coast to coast, chasing the training) and our 3 children, Hana (10), Jake (9) and Eden (16 months); see photo below. Since Eden was born, I left full-time work as a mathematics staff developer, but still consult for school districts around the country on a part-time basis.

On the move with... Paul Camp

A brief update from me...we've just moved back to New York City after living in France and Germany for the last 5 years. Looking forward to reconnecting more with Dartmouth friends now that I'm back in the US. That's it! Paul paul.camp@db.com

Brooding about with... Todd Eagle

My squash game is for the birds (no pun intended), but my brood is growing. Just had a baby girl- Kimberly Blake on July 6. You could imagine the hospital was quiet over July 4th weekend. Luckily there was at least 1 doctor there. best, Todd todd.eagle@gs.com

Big small news from... Jeanhee Kim

When I was growing up I never imagined I would be having babies as I turned 40 but so you have it. Life takes it's own path. Right now I seem to be hurtling down that path at a breakneck pace! For example: From the first week of September until the first week of October we celebrated our toddler Chiara's third birthday, my husband's birthday, our newborn Jemma's (see below) 100th day of life, and my 40th birthday. Whew! What a month of parties. I was so touched and pleased to have Kate Harrison, Kim Lewis and Tamar Schreibman arrange babysitting and even airfare to come celebrate with me.

We are doing really well as a family. Luke is working at a startup called weplay.com. It's a social networking web site focusing on youth sports. Parents, coaches and of course, the young athletes themselves can post schedules, photos, videos, create custom web sites for their teams, etc. Through the web site I've become "weplay friends" with Derek Jeter and Sheryl Swoopes! I returned to my job as editor of the NYU School of Law magazine after a four-month leave. My big accomplishment before taking my leave was to land an interview with an NYU Law alumnus who just took office as the president of Taiwan. Also, during my absence, my office hired a new editorial assistant and he just happens to be a Dartmouth '08! Not to mention that Clayton Gates joined my department on the web side. All of a sudden, Dartmouth alums are everywhere in my life. Chiara started preschool at a fantastic school started by a Dartmouth alum (honestly, I only know him as "Mr. Jeff") from the '60s. When Luke and I showed up at parent orientation, we saw Steve Kong and his wife Rebecca. Their elder daughter Sophia is in the same class. Down the hall is Chloe, Katie Reeves younger daughter. It was surprising enough to discover two other Dartmouth parents in our little school but for all of us to be from the same class was astounding.

Out west with Polly Geller

i am a published poet and have been living in los angeles since 1991. i am currently an MFA student at Otis College of Art & Design with an emphasis in poetry/translation and teach undergrads how to write (if that's at all possible) or to inspire them to at least proofread...

i am a proud proud proud member of both AFTRA and SAG as a result of booking on-camera commercials and voice over spots, but, since this is los angeles, you need more than one day job/career/sideline job, so i do just that: i am a certified massage therapist/poet/actor/grad student/recorded jazz vocalist. thank you for reading this.

Capitol news from Rob Stewart

After 12 years working for the Department of Health and Human Services on issues related to health insurance for low-income individuals, I accepted a position in September with the Congressional Budget Office as a senior budget analyst, where I estimate the cost of legislative proposals related to Medicaid, children's health insurance, and expanding coverage to the uninsured. It's an incredibly busy area, but that makes the job very exciting.

September was a busy month, because I also got married to Kate Quinn, a graduate of Washington and Lee College, whom I met salsa dancing in the Virginia suburbs of DC. Kate works as an acupuncturist in Northern Virginia and we are currently residing in DC.

from Nicholas Stanham

Married to Mariu Vilar del Valle in Uruguay (my parents are from Uruguay) in November 2001 -- many Dartmouth 90's made the huge trek to South America (and only 2 months post 9/11): Eric Browne, Jim Wilhelm, Tom Parker, Tommy Lamme, Lance Geller, Brent Frei '88, David Vaccaro '91, John Drescher '89 - great time.

Have worked as Real Estate and Corporate attorney in Miami (mostly for Latin American and European clients) since graduating Georgetown Law in '94.

Have two great children (Nico (5) and Pauline (3)) and we are expecting Maria Mercedes in early June. Keep in close contact with Tom Parker and Lance Geller who live here in Miami.

Last week had dinner in Fort Lauderdale @ Ray Sozzi's beautiful home with Eric Browne, David Wilson, Earl Allen, Rich Byron, Lance Geller, Tommy Lamme, and Tom Haines -- all with their wives and to celebrate our 40th birthdays (most all of us this year)

alive and kicking... John Neville

A short note to let everyone know I'm alive & kicking -- one of many blessed Dartmouth alums to call the SF Bay Area home. Been here 13 years & worked at Franklin Templeton for the last 10. The financial markets have been a roller coaster ride this year, that's for sure, even muni bonds (our bread & butter). But at least there's plenty of good weather to counteract any stress. And wine! I'll be turning 40 next month & I suspect many other '90's out there are in the same boat. Cheers y'all!

This is such a classic shot, I have to send it. Curt and I do an annual pilgrimage to British Columbia with a small group of longtime friends for back country skiing. This is from March 2008. There's kids, jobs, partners, travels, spontaneous reunion with classmates, and other fun stuff happening too, but a long sweet descent in fresh pow is something special in itself. The other photo is of my wife Lila and me in Kitzbuhel in March.

I'm the coach of the Under 17 Albuquerque Classic Red Star boys team that this spring has won the prestigious Far West Regional League. The tournament win has earned us an automatic berth to the Far West Regional Tournament to be played in Honolulu, Hawaii June 16-22.

Also, my team just won the fifth state title in the past six years. We are currently ranked No.10 in the country.

Straight talk from...
Stephanie Smart

The last year or so has been a time of tremendous change for me (change is not usually my forte, but this has been good!). I lost 4 of my 5 (geriatric) four-legged children (3 felines passed away and the equine was put out to pasture). I met and married my better half, Allen Vander Meulen III (whose father taught econ for a year at Dartmouth in the early 70s). Both avid environmentalists, we married on Earth Day which was also the six month anniversary of our first date. (My marriage to Evan Gewirtz '89 ended in '98.)

Five days after the wedding, Allen and I found our dream house in Lincoln, MA. The summer and fall have been busy with renovations, we hope to move in before the holidays.

Meanwhile, after stumbling around for a bit, I now have a fun and rewarding job: chiropractor for people and animals. And I have kept my name: when you are "Dr. Smart" you don't give that up!

Keeping on the beat with...
Marcus Weiss

While some of the fundamental trappings of my life have remained the same, some HUGE changes have taken place since my last update:

Anastasia and I got married on December 20, 2007, in Las Vegas (no, not a quickie drive-through deal!) and the very next day, she graduated with a B.F.A. in dance. Yes, we were both a tad tired... But, things were not to slow down. After a whirlwind Holiday season, we found out we were expecting our first child! Great news, except we were getting ready to move to Europe where I had been offered a year engagement with Blue Man Group (yep, still banging on those pipes!). After nine months in Stuttgart, Germany, we are now in Basel, Switzerland. I grew up in this country and it is a dream come true to be here with my family.

That's right: our wee bundle of miraculous joy, Jacob Lee Weiss, was born in Stuttgart on September 4th, 2008! He is, without a doubt, the greatest thing that has ever happened to me. The complete lack of sleep thus far, however, is not so great...But a small price, to be sure!

Anastasia, Jakey, and I are in Basel until January 12th. All visitors are welcome!

Urban words from Stephen Kong

"Stephen Kong is living in Manhattan and celebrated the birth of his second daughter, Josie Jean, on Dec 5th. He and wife Rebecca have already one girl, Sophie, who is two and a half years old. Stephen is still hard at work in partnership with his brother Michael (D '86) at their media company, Modern Luxury (modernluxury.com), and this September he's launching Manhattan magazine. The Kongs live in SoHo, and Becca has an art gallery in the West Village, Artware Editions.

Homecoming and Reunion Notes from Kate Harrison

Now on to the big one...our 20th! Still GREEN after all these years.....

Thanks to everyone who completed the reunion survey! This will prove extremely helpful to your '90 reunion team, who are all hard at work to make June 19-21, 2009 our best reunion weekend EVER! The raffle for one full reunion registration reimbursement will take place during the reunion itself, so a reimbursement is precisely what it will be. Good Luck!

This time we will be doing our registrations online, and much of our communication to you will be electronic. If you have not received any '90 related messages from me recently (harrison.family@valley.net), please be sure to update your email in our records by sending it along to me at the address above. You can also visit www.dartmouth90.org for all your reunion information needs.

During the reunion weekend we will be electing a new slate of officers to lead our great class. If you have any interest in running for one of the executive positions, please let me or Matt Greene (matthew@howardgreeneassociates.com) know. The list of positions to be filled: President, Vice President/class project coordinator, Treasurer, Web-ster, Head Agent (Dartmouth College Fund), Secretary (Alumni magazine columns), Newsletter Editor and Mini-reunion Chair.

We hope you are beginning to make plans to attend the weekend in June. There will be plenty of family oriented activities if you are thinking of bringing kids. It will be a great time to catch up with each other, relive those days of our youth, and make new connections. More to come soon!
